

William.. oh William a boy who had nothing and found everything. oh how dare you turn your back on your faith and become a sinner with your body and mind. That is what William kept thinking recently. William was found on the doorsteps of a school of moziake a orphanage and school for those who where left behind a new idea by the king of the capital. the nuns took him in and cared for him but quickly noticed that he was different sky blue eyes like water itself was flowing trough it and pale white hair. The nuns thought he might be a gift from god himself but even with such praise poor William was not spared. at the age where the other boys and girl brought of the same age come to play with him, he was quickly cast aside he looked strange, and acted so unnatural for a young child. from those days onward to the starting days of adolescent every day he was bullied tormented and cursed at for not being like the rest. The nuns did take special interested in William he was not smart or athletic but he was certainly interested in the teaching of god. they nuns thought him everything they knew but understood that a boy of his place could not become who he should be in a place like this. they contacted a local bishop Simon. he worked at a small church close to the orphanage William had been here before a couple of times but never expected what news he would hear on his birthday. He woke up expecting the same as each and everyday but this day was different Bishop Simon adopted poor William. brought him back home and a plate of freshly made food, told William he is under his care now and wants to teach William everything he knows on the teachings of god. William for almost a week could not function his emotions and mind could not understand why he deserved such a good man to teach and take care of him and it certainly took even longer to get used to it. but when he did Oh did poor William shine like he never did before. quickly trough the years becoming a catholic and recently even a priest. his bond with Simon he now calls dad would grow to a extend he could never dream off. he could talk about anything with Simon. Talking endlessly about his interested and the teaching off god. Simon was always Williams pillar, Simon saw the potential William had and grabbed the change of a lifetime. But something happened. William could NEVER share this with Simon. A man Samuel came into his church each and every day. and asked help off poor William. And like his gold instructed him he gave help. What William did not expect was that trough the months a new emotion came over him... love.... of a man?? how could he that's not what he got thought. why does he feel this way how DARE HE. rage filled William mind what did he do to deserve this.

he did not come back to that church for a week taking time to reflect and find god. but oh poor William could not see he was not broken, he found something that few can love.

Samuel would and the end of the week visit William at his home. They talked for hours about anything and everything. Both men of the church both knew they where sinners and both wanted nothing more then be "normal". but as the night grew close something happened that both men could never expect. trough all the talking and laughter. they kissed... William does not remember much after this kiss only disgust was felt inside of him. Samuel still comes to the church and gives William this awkward fleeting smile but William can't seem to lock eyes with Samuel because every time he does. his o so fragile heart breaks.
